OnDemand Europe is the continent's premier event focusing on the development of cloud computing strategies and the challenges of bringing cloud applications to market. The conference attracts leaders from independent software vendors (ISVs), SaaS, Web, and enterprise companies, along with industry analysts, venture capitalists and media. More than 50 experts will offer their knowledge to help participants understand infrastructure choices, validate go-to-market strategies, and learn how to maximize growth, sales, and profits. Through 10 separate informal networking sessions, participants will connect with other SaaS/cloud executives and potential partners.

"OnDemand Europe exists to bring together leaders in the advancement of cloud computing on a global scale," noted Rhianna Collier, Director of the SIIA Software Division. "We are pleased to have Mr. Lorenz and Mr. Suffolk as our keynote speakers. Their experience and insights will significantly enhance the value of the conference."
